SUMMARY OF INFORMATION

The vessel is high, large, and black on its curved inward undersides. It has ample crew. Centered thick piping can be viewed from the top deck as well as some type of mast. This vessel is carrying at least one form of drug (cocaine) and is boxed in plain light brown paper packages. The drugs are stored in a small cramped area beneath the bow. The stacked packages can be seen through a metal grate on the ceiling of the cramped storage area. Big inflatable pillow preservers and a pile of black coal gravel are located on board within the vicinity of the drugs.
